JEFF HAYNES

Jeff Haynes, Partner with Boyle Investment Company, leads the development, management, leasing, and sales of Boyle's Nashville office portfolio. With more than 42 years of commercial real estate experience, including 16 years with Trammell Crow Company, Jeff has overseen the development of more than 2 million square feet of office and retail facilities and guided over 1 million square feet of projects through planning and development. As a founding leader of Boyle's Nashville office, he has been instrumental in the delivery of transformative projects such as Capitol View and Meridian Cool Springs and has helped establish Boyle as one of the region's leading mixed-use developers. In addition to his development experience, Jeff has served on the Metropolitan Nashville Planning Commission from 2011 to 2023, providing him with a unique understanding of land use policy, community planning, and entitlement processes. His extensive experience navigating complex zoning and entitlement challenges, combined with decades of development leadership, brings valuable strategic insight and disciplined execution to projects requiring thoughtful planning and stakeholder coordination.
